

June 8, 2009

Dear Colleagues,

Today I am excited to share the news that as of the opening of the market this morning, our organization joined the S&P 500 Index. This is a milestone achievement—a powerful acknowledgement of our success in delivering high-quality academic programs to students across all of our educational organizations.

As some of you know, members of the S&P 500 Index represent some of the world's most prestigious organizations. To see our organization join these ranks is not only a terrific achievement, but also history in the making. DeVry is replacing General Motors in the S&P 500, which is in a way symbolic of the increasing importance of the “knowledge economy.”

We wanted to celebrate the good news with others. This morning, we announced through a full-page ad in the Wall Street Journal, seen in the attached, that DeVry will be offering 500 scholarships to workers affected by lay-offs in the last 12 months. The 500 Stimulus Scholarships will be offered beginning July 1 at any of our degree-granting institutions.

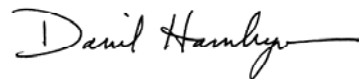

These scholarships are a direct expression of what DeVry is all about. Our purpose -- to empower our students to achieve their educational and career goals— is the perfect inspiration for a scholarship program that intends, through education, to positively affect the lives of those who have been affected by these difficult times. So in the spirit of who we are and what we have set out to create in this world, we celebrate today's events and the significance of the Stimulus Scholarship Program.

Some of you may have friends and family affected by recent economic events and I encourage you to share news of this scholarship with them. The Stimulus Scholarship Program awards scholarships to qualified, new students who have lost their jobs in the last 12 months. You can also get more information about the special scholarship program by visiting www.devry.edu/stimulusscholarship.

The collective efforts of every member of the DeVry team have made this day possible. Your support of our purpose is at the core of our continued success.

As always, I look forward to your thoughts and feedback. Please feel free to contact me at dhamburger@devry.edu.

With much gratitude,

Daniel Hamburger
President & CEO
DeVry Inc.